

Rev. Dr. Stuart Bond

Stuart has served churches on the West Coast for most of his life. He has been a youth pastor, an executive pastor, and a senior pastor. He holds a Master's in Divinity from Princeton and a Doctorate in Ministry from Fuller. In addition, Stuart holds a degree in Marriage and Family Therapy.

Stuart and Cindy married in 1994 and have raised four children. They have two (almost three!) grandchildren and they spoil their labradoodle, Max, way too much.

In February of 2017 Stuart and his wife, Cindy, came to join us here in Corinth.

What brought you here?

Well, an easy answer is the Lord. But, more specifically, what I sensed from Corinth was that this was a congregation of deep faith but also with a sense of humor and joy. I need both of those in my life.

What is important to you in your ministry?

First, I want to be connected to people's lives. I want to know them well and be part of the challenges and the victories we face every week. Second, I want to communicate God's Word. I want my preaching to be true to the Scripture as well as have application for our lives today. [You can go to this link to watch a sermon]

What is a special focus for you at Corinth?

We are working on developing relationships with young couples who are outside the church. We believe that the Lord wants to connect with the next generation. Another way we are doing that is that my wonderful wife, Cindy, is leading a Mothers of Preschool group. Both are new, but we are hoping the Lord will bless both efforts.

So, is it alright being in the East?

You know, we love it! The seasons have been beautiful. The people in and outside the church have been warm and friendly. And there is always one more restaurant to try in Saratoga Springs or Glens Falls! We are having a ball.
